NEW STUDIO OPENED.

A. M. Troup Has Finely Appointed Quarters in Worthen Block.

Troup's new studio, embracing a suite of seven rooms in the Worthen block, third floor back, comprises all of the salient features of an up-to-date photography establishment. The proprietor, A. M. Troup, completed yesterday the work of transferring his equipment from the Gladding block, so called, to his new quarters, which in appointment and convenience, probably have no equal in Vermont. From small beginnings in 1910, the studio, with its operators specializing in monumental photography and portraiture, had grown to be one of the better known business establishments in Barre. Particularly in monumental circles, its monumental designs, the principal product of one department, have found ever increasing markets in three continents.

Now settled in their new home, operators in the Troup studio will have practically unlimited opportunities for developing a business that has shown marked increase from year to year. In handling portrait work, as well as monumental designs, Mr. Troup's efforts along the two lines will be greatly facilitated in quarters that are wholly adequate. A large operating room is equipped with splendid skylight effects and a number of new backgrounds. Across the corridor there is a spacious reception room, in which the proprietor has his desk. There, too, are many specimens of the photographer's art. On the west side of the suite, new equipment has been installed in a laboratory that is divided into two dark rooms and a general printing department. There is also a room for portrait enlargements with the necessary equipment already in place. A lady's dressing room is one of the features of the new studio.

A finely grained finish of mahogany has been used by the owners of the block, McAllister & Boyce, in renovating the suite and tinted walls add materially to the harmonious interior arrangement of the reception and waiting rooms, where the indirect lighting system has also been introduced. The decorations were done by Bjorn and J. A. Field carried out the plans of Mr. Troup in renovating the suite. One corner of the studio is so arranged as to permit portraiture that will faithfully reproduce in its background the real home environment so essential in child photography. Photo studies from the Troup studio are to be shown in a four-sided display case that is to stand on an iron post in front of the entrance and on the Keith avenue side of the Worthen building. In opening his new place of business, Mr. Troup invites inspection of the studio.

For his first assistant, Mr. Troup has engaged George Mitchell, a young man for whom the future seems to hold much promise in the photography line. Mr. Mitchell is a graduate of Goddard seminary and will manage the business end of the establishment.

Furs for the Season.

Regarding the styles for this season's furs the November Woman's Home Companion says:

The girl or woman who wants to have the most fashionable thing in furs this winter will secure for herself a set of fox—black, silver, white, red or cross—in the animal style. The animal style means the all-fur scarf is double, using the whole skin with the head at one end, the tail at the other and the paws used as fastening straps. The muff that accompanies this scarf may be in the pillow style or in the once old, now new, perfectly round shape. In either case the head and tails serve as trimming.

"Other long-haired furs that will be used are fisher, wolf and skunk. "Beaver, out of fashion for so many seasons, is once more the leader among the short-haired pelts, and will be next to fox in style this year. For trimming and sets for young girls and children gray trimmer will be much in evidence, and as for Hudson seal, it will be the fur for coats. It is very effective when trimmed with a contrasting fur."

John J. Kennedy of Keith avenue returned home last night from Rutland, where he has been spending the past few days on business connected with the Ingersoll-Rand Co.

Kenneth Macrae of the Union Dry Goods store left yesterday for Burlington on a business trip. He was accompanied by Mrs. Macrae, who will remain in Burlington over Sunday.

Miss Mary Blanchard of Lowell, Mass., who has been spending some time visiting in Berlin and for the past few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Beaulieu of Farwell street, left to-day for her home.

Joseph A. Lawrence of St. Albans, who has been a visitor in the city for the past week, left last night for his home for a short stay, before going to New York City, where he has secured employment.

Charles Sunderland, who is employed as a demonstrator in the Drown garage, left to-day for his former home in Montreal, P. Q., where he will bid farewell to an uncle who is leaving with a Canadian contingent for England.

Miss Carrie Calderara, who has been residing on North Seminary street in this city for several years, left yesterday for New York City, and she was planning on sailing this noon for Italy, where she will now make her home.

Amador Pedroni of Brook street shipped his household goods to-day to New York, where his son, Lawrence Pedroni, is employed. Mrs. Pedroni, accompanied by her two daughters, Maria and Sylvia, will leave soon to spend the winter with her son, but Mr. Pedroni will remain in Barre.

William McIntosh, one of Goddard seminary's best football men, is recovering from a bad sprain he received early in the week, sustained in a collision with Dan Keefe. It is hoped he will be able to play in the game against the Norwich second team of Northfield on Monday afternoon.

A hearing in the state case against Mrs. Leonard Bergonzi, charged with selling illegally, has been set for 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The respondent has retained counsel and if a jury trial is desired, the jury will be drawn on Tuesday afternoon in preparation for a hearing Wednesday morning. Grand Juror William Wishart is to conduct the prosecution.

To forestall the possibility of an accident, the cornice work over the front of the Reynolds building on North Main street, which was gutted by fire Tuesday morning, has been strengthened by a number of props firmly secured inside and protruding through the third story windows of the structure. While the fire was at its height, the cornice was seen to sag perceptibly and the fear that it might crash into the street prompted the police to keep all persons from straying too near the store front. No additional indications that the cornice may fall have been discerned, but the hardware firm does not intend to take any chances.

One respondent was discharged for lack of evidence and a second respondent waived examination in arraignments before Justice Chamberlain in Washington Thursday when two Williamstown men, whose houses were raided for contraband liquor Monday evening, appeared. After a hearing C. Celetti was discharged from custody and A. DeCota, who waived examination, furnished bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance in Orange county court at Chelsea. A large number of Williamstown and Barre Town people participated in the hearing. Quantities of beer were found in each house when Sheriff W. E. Bixby of East Barre, armed with a warrant issued by State's Attorney Frank C. Williams of Bradford, and accompanied by Sheriff A. A. Reed and Deputy Sheriff Guy Martin of Williamstown, searched the premises.

A thriving domestic plant which Judge H. W. Scott is nourishing in his office at city hall has seven well-developed orange blossoms. The plant has been in the magistrate's possession several years and a number of large oranges have been grown on the little tree.

Frank Mills, a well known resident of Orange, who was a business visitor in the city to-day, states that fully three inches of snow fell on the heights yesterday. People in that section who expected warmer weather after the storm, had another guess coming, for the wind blew a stiff gale this morning and much of the snow remained on the landscape.

The auction sale at H. M. Farnham's at Montpelier yesterday was well attended, and a large amount of property changed hands—25 horses, heavy wagons, buggies, manure spreader, sleighs, harnesses, a bunch of shoats, robes, winter horse blankets, whips and a lot of ready-made clothing. Prices seemed to be satisfactory to both buyer and seller. This makes $1 auction sales that Mr. Farnham has held, with C. F. Smith as auctioneer for all.

G. E. Morris, the South Barre apiarist, has a bee record which, he believes, is head and shoulder above any honey harvest figures that the average beekeeper can uncover in a year that has been unusually favorable for bee culture. From twenty hives Mr. Morris has taken more than 2,000 pounds of extracted honey of first quality this season. In addition to this splendid achievement of his winged employees, forty pounds of pure honey have been gathered by the bees for winter use in their hives. From five hives producing comb honey, the apiarist averaged sixty sections.

Says Women-folks Make Farmers Move Into Town.

In the October American Magazine Stanley Johnson continues his articles on the subject, "Youth Leads the Way." In these articles he is showing how, under the direction of the United States department of agriculture, boys and girls on American farms are achieving wonders in the way of showing their elders how to increase the crops and general efficiency. O. H. Benson of the department of agriculture, who is in charge of the boys' and girls' club work in northern and western states, writes an interesting introduction to Mr. Johnson's present article in which he shows how farm women are learning to care more for their work and to have less desire to get to the cities. He adds:

"In a western community a county superintendent made a survey of twenty-five farmers who had retired from farm life and moved into town. When they were asked their reason for leaving the farm, seventeen of the twenty-five stated definitely that they did it to please their wives and daughters. Mother and daughter had been dissatisfied with the farm life."

Homer Jerd of Montpelier is assisting as clerk in the Diversi Fruit store for a few days during the absence of Joseph Marchetti, who is visiting at his former home in Maine.

A "500" party was enjoyed by about a dozen friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson at the latter's home on South Main street last evening. Music was also enjoyed and the guests were served with refreshments.

There will be no football game in the city this afternoon as far as the Spaulding and Goddard elevens are concerned. This afternoon the seminary does not play at all, but the big game of the season, where considerable rivalry is shown, is at Montpelier, where the Spaulding and Montpelier high schools clash.

Joseph Smith of South Main street, a foreman on the Barre & Chelsea railroad, is able to resume his duties after being obliged to remain indoors a few days on account of a broken rib. Mr. Smith was cranking his automobile at his home when it kicked, and the crank struck his chest. At first it was thought the blow merely made a bad bruise, but upon a doctor's examination it was found a rib was broken.

The clerks of the Barre association, to the number of about 75, gathered at their rooms in the Worthen block for their regular meeting last night, after which music, dancing and refreshments were on the program. After the regular business had been gone through with, Miss Nellie Stora rendered piano selections and some took diversion in dancing. Ice cream and cake, which was presented by the clerks by a sympathizer, were later served. In all, they enjoyed an excellent evening until nearly midnight.

Five automobiles carrying 30 members of the Winnietta council, No. 10, degree of Pochontas, nearly all being officers of the Barre lodge, went last evening to Hardwick, where they worked their degree on a candidate. After the work of the evening was over the visitors were royally entertained by the Hardwick people. A banquet was first served to them, after which they gathered in the hall for dancing, which continued to the hour. Their journey home was made early this morning.

Rinaldo Berini, a well known young man of the Italian colony, who experienced an accident which nearly deprived him of the sight in one eye last year and who went to Italy for a prolonged sojourn, arrived in the city yesterday to rejoin his mother, Mrs. Madeline Berini of B street. Soon after his arrival in Italy, Mr. Berini was detained for military service and was persuaded to join the army. For several months he was training at a time when all Italy was aflame with enthusiasm over the peninsula kingdom's impending entry into the great European struggle. When the troops began to depart for the front, Mr. Berini was compelled to stay at home on account of defective eyesight and soon afterward he received an honorable discharge from the army with permission to return to his mother's home in America. Mr. Berini tells many interesting stories of Italy's preparations for the strife and her methods of making war.
